INDOOR PERCUSSION

Indoor percussion ensemble consists of battery percussion (drumline) and front ensemble (pit percussion) sections of the marching band. Indoor Percussion marries elements of music performance, marching, and theater; thus, the activity is often referred to as percussion theater. High school ensembles start practicing after marching band season in November. The season culminates with our RMPA State Championships and WGI World Championships in April. It is sometimes called Winter Percussion due to the season in which it mostly occurs.
